PREFACE

A NEW edition of the Old English Heptateuch scarcely needs an apology. It is almost two centuries and a quarter since Edward Thwaites, of Queen's College, Oxford, published what still remains the only English edition. Thwaites's work is a scholarly performance despite its age; but it has long been out of print, and is becoming increasingly difficult to obtain. Thwaites's text of the Heptateuch and William L'isle's edition of Ælfric's Treatise concerning the Old and New Testament (1623) were reprinted, with a certain number of emendations, by Dr. C. W. M. Grein, under the title Älfrik de vetere et novo testamento, Pentateuch, Iosua, Buch der Richter und Hiob (1872), as the first volume in his "Bibliothek der angelsächsischen Prosa." Grein in his preface promised to add a collation of the text of his edition of the Heptateuch, etc., with the MSS, to a subsequent volume of the "Bibliothek," but, so far as I know, this was never done. Nor has it been done in the 1921 reprint of Grein, in spite of the fact that a careful collation of Grein's text with the MSS. is prefixed to Dr. J. Wilke's Lautlehre zu Aelfrics Heptateuch und Buch Hiob (Bonn, 1905).

The text of these earlier editions of the Old English Heptateuch is based almost entirely on Bodleian MS. Laud Misc. 509. In the present edition, British Museum MS. Cotton Claudius B IV. is printed in full for the first time, and collated with all the other existing manuscripts and fragments.

All deviations from the text of the manuscript have been noted. Editorial emendations are printed in italics and enclosed between  $\langle \; \rangle$ ; earlier alterations of the text, found in the manuscript, are noted, and when included in the text are bracketed, but printed in roman type. Superfluous letters or words in the original text are enclosed in square brackets. Expanded contractions are printed in italics. The editor is responsible for the punctuation, capital letters and the numbering of the chapters and verses. Throughout he has tried faithfully to obey Ælfric's injunction:—"Locahwa pas boc awrite, write hig be pære bysne, I for Godes lufon hi gerihte, pæt heo to leas ne beo pam writere to plihte I me to tale!"

In conclusion, I have to express my grateful thanks to Sir Israel Gollancz and the Early English Text Society for undertaking the publication of this book, and to the staff of Messrs. Richard Clay and Sons, Ltd., Bungay, for their assistance in the course of the printing; to Miss Mabel Day, D.Lit., of the Early English Text Society, for arranging for the reproduction of the facsimiles of the MSS.; to the Master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, for enabling me to consult the C.C.C. transcript of MS. Camb. Univ. Lib. I. i. l. 33; and to Professor Einenkel for permission to reprint in the Appendix the text of the Late Old English Notes to MS. Claudius B iv. from an article which is to appear in Anglia.

I have also to thank the staff of the Bodleian Library, especially Dr. Craster and Mr. Falconer Madan, for their kind assistance and advice; also the staffs of the British Museum and the Cambridge University Library, in particular Mr. Herbert, of the British Museum, and Mr. Rogers, of the Cambridge University Library.

Further I am deeply indebted to my friend, Mr. Kenneth Sisam, who read the first proof of the introduction, and gave me the benefit of his wide and accurate knowledge of OE. palæography; to Dr. M. R. James, of Eton, who very kindly supplemented by letter the valuable information contained in his published works; to my friend and former colleague, Mr. Ferrand E. Corley, of the Madras Christian College; and to Dr. Henry Bradley for the interest he has taken in the work and for several very useful suggestions and criticisms.

But my heaviest debt of all is to Professor W. A. Craigie, of Oxford, to whom the work owes its inception. Dr. Craigie has not only shown the greatest interest in the whole course of the work, but with characteristic generosity has read the proofs as they came from the press. Those who know him intimately will most readily understand how much the book owes to his fine scholarship and balanced judgment, and how greatly it has benefited by his criticisms and corrections. To him I tender my heart-felt thanks.

S. J. CRAWFORD.

Old English Beptateuch

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. The Titles.

The title "Heptateuch" is without manuscript authority; it is a convenient term used first in English in the seventeenth century to denote the Pentateuch together with the books of Joshua and Judges. The title-page of Thwaites's 1 edition which is, to use a happy phrase employed by Wanley in a different connection, "monumentum pietatis maiorum nostrorum sane spectabile," runs as follows: "Heptateuchus, Liber Job, et Evangelium Nicodemi; Anglo-Saxonice. Historiæ Judith Fragmentum; Dano-Saxonice. Edidit nunc primum ex MSS codicibus Edwardus Thwaites, è Collegio Reginæ. Oxoniæ, è Theatro Sheldoniano. An. Dom. MDCXCVIII. Typis Junianis." C. W. M. Grein, whose text is based on that of Thwaites, does not use the term "Heptateuch," but returns in his edition of 1872 to the traditional nomenclature, "Pentateuch, Iosua, Buch der Richter, etc."

Ælfric's Treatise on the Old and New Testament, in metrical prose, is called on fol. 120<sup>v</sup> of Bodl. MS. Laud Misc. 509, "Libellus de ueteri testamento et nouo"; and on fol. 1<sup>R</sup> of the same manuscript his Preface to Genesis is headed by the words "Incipit prefatio Genesis anglicé."

§ 2. The Manuscripts.

The manuscripts utilized in the preparation of this edition are designated as follows:—

- (1) B. = MS. British Museum, Cotton, Claudius B. IV.
- (2) L. = MS. Bodleian, Laud Misc. 509.
- (3) C. = MS. Cambridge University Library, I i. 1. 33.
- (4) O. = MS. British Museum, Cotton, Otho B. 10.
- (5) Ln. = MS. Lincoln Cathedral Library, 295. 2.
- (6) H. = MS. Bodleian, Hatton 115.
- (7) X. = MS. Bodley 343.
- (8) N. = Fragments of Exodus given by Nicholson to Gibson.

(1) British Museum MS. Cotton Claudius B IV.1 (B.).

This manuscript, which contains part of Ælfric's Preface to Genesis, and the complete text of the Old English Pentateuch and Book of Joshua, formerly belonged to the library of St. Augustine's, Canterbury. It consists of foll. 156, and is thus described by Wanley (Cat. pp. 253-4): "Cod. membr. fol. min. in quo continentur, Excerpta Historica ex Pentateucho Moisis, atque ex libro Josue, Saxonicè, etc. ab Ælfrico Defloratore Æthelwardo Aldermanno dedicata. Folium hujusce Cod. MS. primum desideratur, in quo extabat pars prior Epistolæ nuncupatoriæ Ælfrici ad Æthelwærdum. . . . Quod Cod. hunc attinet, videtur scriptus paullo ante Conquisitionem Angliæ, per totum illustratur Iconibus Historicis, rudiori tamen manu delineatis. quan plurimis in locis, manu recentiori, insignitur Adnotationibus Historicis Latinis, nonnullisque Saxonicis ex Josepho, Methodio, etc. Monumentum pietatis majorum nostrorum sane spectabile!"

As regards the date of the manuscript, Wanley, as we have just seen, places it "a little before the Norman Conquest." The opinion of more recent authorities on the subject has fluctuated. Formerly the tendency was to assign the manuscript to the early part of the eleventh century; but since 1906 (as I am kindly informed by Mr. J. A. Herbert of the British Museum) the leading authorities in the Department of Manuscripts prefer to substitute "eleventh century" for the more definite "early eleventh century."

An account of the drawings contained in the manuscript will be found in a dissertation by G. T. Files entitled The Anglo-Saxon House (Leipzig, 1893). These drawings have evidently been inserted after the text was completed in spaces left vacant by the scribe for the purpose. Those in the earlier folios are done with much greater care than those towards the end of the manuscript, where spaces have been occasionally left vacant, and utilized, together with many of the illustrations, by a less artistically minded theologian for the Latin notes or comments referred to by Wanley.

The text of the Early English notes mentioned by Wanley will be found in Appendix I of this edition. For an account of their phonology see Anglia, 1923. Mr. K. Sisam, who has kindly examined the MS., assigns them to 1150-1200.

In addition to the above-mentioned early notes, numerous insertions and corrections of the text occur in a late (16th to 17th century) hand, which, like the similar corrections in the same hand in L., may with a very high degree of probability, if not absolute certainty, be assigned to the well-known Anglo-Saxon scholar William de L'isle, who was well acquainted with both manuscripts, and would appear to have used the one to correct or supplement the other.

The accents seem to have been inserted at random, and, so far as I am able to judge, no useful purpose would be served by preserving them. The following line of the text may be regarded as typical in this respect:—

"  $\neg$ hê fôr ongêan hîne to gôdes dûne  $\neg$  cîste hîne."

(2) BODLEIAN MS. LAUD MISC. 5091 (L.).

This manuscript, though not the carliest, is the most complete manuscript of the Heptateuch; for unlike B. it contains the Book of Judges, as well as the Pentateuch and Book of Joshua. That Judges, though included, was not regarded by the scribe as an integral part of the translation of the Bible, is suggested by the fact that he leaves a blank page, fol.  $107^{V}$ , at the end of the Book of Joshua, and begins the Book of Judges, or rather Ælfric's Homily on the Book of Judges, on fol.  $108^{R}$  (cf. (6) infra).

In addition to the Heptateuch, L. gives us the complete text of the Preface to Genesis, the Treatise on the Old and New Testament, and Ælfric's Epistle to Wulfget of Ylmandune. In the present edition, L. is the only authority for the earlier part of the Preface to Genesis, which is missing in B., for the Treatise on the New Testament and a considerable portion of the Treatise on the Old Testament, and L. is the basis for the text of the Book of Judges.

The manuscript, which is an octavo of foll. 141 written in a beautiful, small, but clear hand (cf. fol. 97<sup>R</sup> reproduced, p. 372 infra) with twenty-six lines to the page, is described as follows by Wanley (Cat. p. 67): "Codex membr. in octauo paullo post Conquæstum Angliæ scriptus, in quo continetur Versio Heptateuchi Saxonica, præter alia quædam Ælfrici Abbatis."

On both palæographical and phonological grounds it is to be assigned to the second half of the eleventh century, perhaps about 1075, and regarded as considerably later than B.

Throughout the manuscript there are a large number of interlinear Latin glosses taken from the Vulgate, which at times become an almost continuous version. In addition, the more unusual Old English words are often underlined, starred, and glossed with Latin renderings in the margin. Early English glosses are very rare, but a considerable number of variant readings or corrections from B. have been inserted in a modern hand, probably by William de L'isle.

It should be noted that between foll. 5 and 6 a leaf containing about two chapters of Genesis (from wife, Gen. iii. 20, to hund, v. 13) was lost before the folios were numbered.

Thwaites's (and consequently Grein's) text is based entirely on L., except for the chapters of Genesis to which reference has just been made. These he has supplied from B. and C. Thwaites's note to Genesis iii. 20 runs: "Ab hac voce (wife) usque ad hund in cap. v. vers. 13 omnia ex MS Codice Laudino deperdita, hic restituuntur ex Codd. MSS. duobus, altero bibliothecæ publicæ, quæ est Cantabrigiæ; altero Cottonianæ, quæ est Westmonasterii. quorum codicum omnes variantes lectiones edere non opus, dum autographa propriis oculis usurpare liceat."

De L'isle's text of the Treatise on the Old and New Testament (1623), which has been followed by Grein (1872), is based on L. Dr. Sweet's caustic animadversions (Anglo-Saxon Reader, 1876, p. 56) on "the omissions and wanton alterations" in De L'isle's text are not without justification, but his own text is not immaculate.

An elaborate account of the phonology of L. will be found in the Bonn dissertation Lautlehre zu Ælfric's Heptateuch und Buch Hiob, by Dr. J. Wilkes (Bonn, 1905), which is based on a comparison of Grein's text with the original manuscript.

[Note.—In filling the lacuna in L., Thwaites proceeded as follows: Genesis iv. 20-21 and 23-24, and Genesis v. 1-4, and 7-13, he took from C. and the remainder from B. Genesis iv. 18 is probably mainly based on B., and not, as stated by Chase, Archiv, c. 243, footnote, on C.]

(3) CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY MS. I i. 1. 33 (C.).

This manuscript (a quarto on vellum of 450 pages with 24 lines to the page), which formerly belonged to Archbishop Parker, who presented it to the University of Cambridge in 1574, is described by Wanley (Cat. pp. 162-3) as follows: "Codex membranaceus in Quarto longe post Conquisitionem Angliæ litteris Normanno-Saxonicis scriptus, in quo continentur ea quæ sequuntur scripta: I. Pag. 1 Capita XXIIII. priora libri Genescos, quibus præmittitur Epistola nuncupatoria Ælfrici translatoris ad Æthelweardum, etc. . . . II. P. 44 (Homilia) In Dominica Passionis Manu Neoterica. . . . Quæ dein sequuntur alium videntur Codicem constituisse etsi cum superioribus forte compactus codex integer non amplius videtur."

As regards the date of the manuscript, both the handwriting (cf.

p. 42,1 reproduced at p. 147 infra) and the language point to the middle of the twelfth century. The note of the date in the MS, itself is by J. M. Kemble ("probably twelfth").

There is a well-written sixteenth-century copy of C. (Wanley, Cat. p. 151) among the Parker MSS. in the C.C.C. Library, Cambridge.

The most interesting feature of C. is that, while it is for the most part substantially identical with the version of Genesis in B, and L., it contains in Genesis, chaps. iv., v., xi., xxiii. and xxiv., a translation from the Vulgate differing from and largely independent of that presented by the text of the Cotton and Laud manuscripts. In the present edition this new version has been printed in parallel columns with the B. text, and the variant readings of the rest of C. given in the apparatus criticus.

The problems raised by the authorship of the C.-text are discussed at length by Dr. Frank H. Chase in an article entitled "A New Text of the Old English Genesis." 2 But as there is little or no certain evidence to go upon, Dr. Chase's conclusions can hardly be regarded as more than ingenious conjectures—which it is but fair to add is all that he claims for them.3

Another notable feature of C. is its linguistic character. A fuller treatment of some of the problems raised by C., together with an account of its dialectal and other peculiarities, will be found in Appendix II, infra.

(4) British Museum MS., Cotton, Otho B. 10 (O.).

O, which appears to belong to the period 1025-50, and therefore to have been one of the earlier MSS. of Ælfric's works, was

"The text of MS. C. as it stands is evidently the work of a contaminator, who, having got hold of Ælfric's first draft (or, if you like, "sum offer man's" \(\langle C. \) Ælfric's Preface to Genesis.—Ed.\(\rangle\) version) and the earlier translation of the beginning of Genesis, which contained the genealogies, set out to put together a text, which should be as complete as possible. To this end he followed Ælfric—the version of MSS. B. and L.—through Genesis iii. In iv., he could the verses lacking in Ælfric together with a large part of v.: he he found two verses lacking in Ælfric, together with a large part of v.; he accordingly took these two chapters from the earlier version. vi.-ix. were again drawn from Ælfric, although he omits vii., 13-16, and viii., 19-gaps, the text, as Ælfric is most meagre here. xii.-xxii. 19, come from the sandard text, and are largely complete. xxii. 20-xxiv. 22 were taken from the earlier draft, as being more nearly full. Beyond this, only the 'authorized' and widely-disseminated Ælfric text was obtainable: the scribe therefore stopped here, in mediis rebus, and went on to the copying of homilies."

almost entirely destroyed by the fire of 1731. Wanley tells us that, in addition to O.E. homilies, the manuscript contained a fragment of the book of Genesis—"cap. 37 ad finem libri, continens historiam Iosephi Patriarchæ" (Cat., p. 192). It is noteworthy that the end of this fragment as preserved by Wanley (l.c.) differs radically from the version contained in MSS. B. and L., though in other respects the variations between the text of O. and that of the other two MSS. seem to have been of a minor character.

(5) LINCOLN CATHEDRAL LIBRARY MS., 295. 2 (LN.).

Wanley (Cat. p. 305) gives his friend, Dr. Tanner of Norwich, as his authority for the statement that there were certain fragments of the Old English Version of the Heptateuch in the Library of Lincoln Cathedral, but until recently all trace of these fragments seems to have been lost.<sup>2</sup> Their re-discovery is due to the Reverend Canon R. M. Woolley, who found them when cataloguing the library of Lincoln Cathedral. Thanks to his kindness, I was enabled to reproduce them in full in an article entitled, "The Lincoln Fragment of the O.E. Version of the Heptateuch," published in the Modern Language Review (Jan. 1920).

The fragments, or more correctly fragment, consists of two imperfect leaves containing an extract from the Book of Numbers, beginning with chap. ix. 1 and ending with chap. xvi. 2. The version contained in the fragment, as the collation shows, is, apart from merely phonological and orthographical variations, practically identical with that of MSS. B. and L.

The fragment is written in a fine regular hand, and can hardly be dated later than the third quarter of the eleventh century. The language, like that of MSS. B., L., O. and H., is pure Late West Saxon. A few peculiarities will be found noted in my article referred to above.

(6) BODLEIAN MS., HATTON, 115 (H.).

MS. H. (formerly Junius 23) is described by Wanley (Cat. p. 36) as follows: "Codex membr. in octano grandiori, paulo post Conquæstum Angliæ scriptus, in quo continetur Collectio Hom. Saxon. una cum aliis Tractatulis." The manuscript, which consists of foll. 153<sup>v</sup>, with twenty-seven lines to the page, contains a collection of fast-day and miscellaneous sermons by Ælfric, including on foll, Cf. Appendix II, infra.

 F. H. Chase, Archiv, C. 242.

In the present work the text of Judges is based on L., but collated throughout with H., and the variant readings given below.

The date is probably to be placed within the last quarter of the eleventh century.

This manuscript contains a considerable number of glosses, mostly in Latin, but a few in English. These glosses, which are well illustrated by fol. 113<sup>v</sup>, mentioned above, are written in a hand well known to students of the older English MSS.1 They appear to date from the late twelfth century, and are to be found in a series of MSS. which are believed to have been together in the same library at Worcester. They are in a shaky, uncertain handwriting, which seems to be that of an aged scribe. A list of the English glosses on the Book of Judges contained in H. will be found in Appendix I, infra.

In addition to the glosses, a large number of interlinear marks and letters have been inserted about the same time as the glosses, obviously for the convenience of readers with an imperfect knowledge of Old English. Further details regarding these marks will be found in Appendix I.

(7) MS. Bodley 343 (X.).

MS. X., from which a fragment of Ælfrie's "Libellus de Veteri Testamento et Novo" is published, is described by Wanley (Cat. p. 15) as follows: "Codex membranaceus in folio circiter Henrici Secundi tempora manu Normanno-Saxonica scriptus. Quo quidem continetur uberrima collectio homiliarum. Notandum autem est hujus codicis descriptores orthographiam Saxonicam in sui temporis scripturam continuo mutasse et uoces phrasesque Normanno-Saxonicas Saxonicarum loco non raro succenturiatas usurpasse." In the Bodleian Library Catalogue (2406), the manuscript is described as consisting of four different MSS, bound together. It contains 205 leaves with illuminated capitals, and appears to have been written about the third quarter of the twelfth century.2 The late Professor A. S. Napier says that, with the exception of some few pieces in Latin and one or two smaller pieces in English (among which is included our fragment), its contents consist of English homilies, nearly all of which are copies of pre-conquest originals." 1

The dialect of the fragment of the "Libellus de Veteri Testamento et Novo" fully corresponds, as an analysis has shown, with that of the "History of the Holy Rood-Tree" from the same MS., as described by Professor Napier in his edition of the latter work (pp. xlvii.-lix.). With a few modifications, due to the late date, the language of the fragment is pure Late West Saxon.

Though the fragment has already been published by Assmann,<sup>2</sup> as it is comparatively short, I have thought it well to print it here in parallel columns with the text of MS. I.

In view of Wanley's remark (supra), the following substitutions in the X., as compared with the L.-text are significant: "twinnes" for "getwisan" (292), "spæe" for "gereord" (226), "ferde" for "gewat" (391), "kyngbocum" for "cininga bocum" (711), and "beod" for "synd" (passim).

(8) Fragments of Exodus given by Nicholson to Dr. Gibson (N.).

In the notes to his edition of the Heptateuch (1698), Thwaites gives (Notes, p. 31) a list of variant readings which he describes as follows: "Variantes lectiones collectæ ab Exodi fragmento, quod olim casu repertum, amicus noster Gulielmus Nicholsonus dono dedit amico suo nostroque Edmund Gibsono; qui ipsum lacerum autographum mecum benigne communicauit. Characteres fragmenti antiquitatem quattuor seculorum præ se ferunt." Most of Dr. Gibson's papers were bequeathed to Lambeth Library, but I can find no mention of this fragment in the Lambeth catalogue, and in spite of various inquiries I have not been able to trace it.

The fragment appears to have contained Exodus, chaps. ix. (20-35), x. (1-9), xii. (119-22), and xiv. (1-23). Thwaites only gives the variations from L. The fragment, however, appears to have come from a version agreeing very closely with B. and L.

§ 4. The Translations.

Throughout the Heptateuch, the Old English translation is accompanied in the present edition by the Latin text of the Vulgate, on which it is based.

Instead of giving a more modern, but less readable rendering of Ælfric's Treatise on the Old and New Testament I have given a reprint of the version by William (de) L'isle,¹ from the Bodleian copy of the edition of 1623 [Shelf-mark, Bodley, 4°. A. 31]. The translation is not without mistakes, which, however, are scarcely likely to mislead those who will use this book. I have therefore reprinted it as it stands as being worthy of reproduction both on account of its intrinsic interest as an example of sinewy and idiomatic early seventeenth-century English prose, and also as a memorial, not deserving of oblivion, of the work of a worthy member of that noble band of sixteenth and seventeenth-century scholars, who in spite of so many handicaps pursued with such laudable enthusiasm the study of the Old English tongue, and led the way for their more scientifically equipped successors of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

§ 5. The Relationship of the Manuscripts.

Thwaites in the preface to his edition of the Heptateuch (§ 1 supra) describes MS. L. as the oldest ("vetustissimum") of the existing MSS.<sup>2</sup> But this claim on behalf of L. can hardly be substantiated either on linguistic or other grounds.

All the MSS, are in Late West Saxon, with the exception of C., for which see Appendix II, infra. MS. X. belongs, as we have already seen, § 2 (7), supra, to the third quarter of the twelfth century, and shows the linguistic modifications we should expect from its date. The fragments of O. have one or two dialectal features, such as  $\alpha$  for the i-unlant of  $\alpha$ °: e.g. sxnde, G. xlv. 5, xlvi. 28, frumcænneda, xlvi. 8, gehænde, xlvi. 10, acænnede, xlvi. 12, acænde, xlvi. 15, 22 (Cf. K. D. Bülbring: Altenglisches Elementarbuch, § 171), and cliopode for the regular Ælfrician clypode (clipode)—Bülbring, § 283, Anm. 2. In other respects, what remains of O. agrees closely with standard Late West Saxon of the eleventh century.

&lt;sup>1</sup> L'isle appears to have intended to publish a translation of the Heptateuch, Judges and Job. Among the contents of Bodleian MS. Laud E. 33, Wanley gives: I Saxon-English Remaines of the Pentateuch, Josua, Judges, Job, etc. Out of Sir Robert Cotton's Manuscripts of most reverend antiquity, now first new-Englished and set out by W. L. . . Codex antem hic continet translationem Pentateuchi Anglo-Saxonici (qui in bibl. Cottoniana inscribitur Claudius B. 4) in linguam Anglicanam per Will. L'isle. Catalogus, p. 99. [Laud E. 33 — Laud 381.]

The remaining MSS. or fragments—B.L.N., L.N. and H.—have few or no dialectal features, but of the five (or four if we neglect N.), L. departs farthest from the regular orthography of the best manuscripts of the works of Ælfric, its most striking characteristic being its predilection for i instead of y from all sources.

On the other hand, L. prefers the spelling ys to is in the substantive verb, the ratio of occurrences being  $315:39.^2$  Another feature of L. is that for the pronouns of the third person,  $hig^3$  is much commoner than the normal hy, or hi. MS. B. prefers is and hy respectively.

On linguistic grounds, I therefore think, we are justified in assuming as between the two most important MSS. of the Heptateuch that L. marks a departure from the practice of the earliest and best MSS. of Ælfric and is somewhat later than B., which in this respect adheres more closely to the traditional practice, a conclusion also supported by palæography, which assigns a considerably earlier date to B.

It does not follow, however, that, because it was written first, B. must give us in every case the preferable reading, or that the L.-text of the Heptateuch is based upon the B.-text, apart from Judges, which is absent from B.

In many passages, it is true, B. gives us a fuller text and readings not found in L. though supported in several instances by the text of the other MSS. or fragments: e.g. Gen. iii. 3, xviii. 32, xix. 2; Lev. viii. 9, xxv. 11; Num. ii. 32, xii. 10, xiv. 40, xx. 30, xxi. 5; Deut. iii. 27, xxxiv. 9; Joshua i. 1, i. 6-7, iii. 17, x. 40, etc. But in other cases, L. presents the more complete text, as in:—Gen. iii. 15, v. 32, xviii. 31, xxvii. 7; Exod. xxi. 10; Lev. Rubric, p. 286; Num. ii. 32, xxxi. 18; Deut. x. 32, etc.

An examination of the passages referred to goes to prove that L. is not derived from B., nor B. from L. But in spite of these occasional divergencies, the general resemblance between B. and L. is so close, the differences being for the most part orthographical or phonological, that we may regard them as presenting what is to all intents and purposes the standard text of the Old English Version of the Pentateuch and Book of Joshua.

With regard to the other MSS., C. where it follows the standard version (cf. § 2 (3) supra) agrees in some cases more closely with B. (e.g. Gen. iii. 15, viii. 1) and in others with L. (e.g. Gen. xviii. 32, xix. 2, xix. 33). O. except for its close and a few modifications (cf. Gen. xlv. 10, xlv. 26, xlvi. 28, xlvii. 15) follows the standard text, its discrepancies being mainly orthographical or phonological. The same holds good for Ln. and the variants contained in N.

As regards the two texts of the Book of Judges, the variants suggest that neither is an immediate copy of the other, but that here also we have to deal with MSS. which represent different lines of descent from a common original—a statement also applicable to the relationship between the X. and L. texts of Ælfric's Treatise on the Old and New Testament.

To sum up, we have in B. what is certainly the earliest complete MS. of Ælfric's version of the Old Testament—which did not include the Book of Judges. In L., I believe, we have a considerably later manuscript, not derived from B., but affording an almost equally reliable text of the standard translation. In O. Ln., and N., so far as their extremely fragmentary character permits us to judge, we have relics of other eleventh-century MSS. of the "standard text" with such minor modifications as are incidental to scribal tradition. In C., however, we have a twelfth-century manuscript radically different both in dialect and version, giving us a "contaminated" text of the earlier part of Genesis, which follows in part the standard Ælfrician translation, but which also contains in Genesis chaps. iv., v., xi., xxiii. and xxiv. a new, and to some extent independent version, which may be earlier, but is more probably later, than that traditionally ascribed to Ælfric.

This Treatise was for one man endited, but may neuerthelesse profit many.

Abbot Elfrike greeteth friendly Sigwerd at East Heolon. True it is I tell thee, that very wise is he, who speaketh by his doings; & well proceedeth he both with God and the world, who furnisheth himselfe with good works. And very plaine it is in holy Scripture, that holy men employed in well doing were in this world held in good reputation, & as Saints now enioy the kingdome of heauen, and the remembrance of them continueth for euer, because of their consent with God & relying on him. Carelesse men who lead their life in all idlenes, & so end it, the memory of them is forgotten in holy writ, saving that the Old Testament records their ill deeds, & how they were therefore condemned. Thou hast oft entreated me for English Scripture, & I gaue it thee not so soone, but thou first with deeds hast importuned me therto; at what time thou didst so earnestly pray me for Gods love to preach vnto thee at thine owne house: and when I was with thee, great mone thou madest that thou couldst get none of my writings. Now will I that thou have at least this little, sith knowledge is so acceptable vnto thee, and thou wilt haue it rather than be altogether without my bookes. God loueth good deeds, and will have them at our hands; and it is manifestly written of him. That he reioyceth in his owne workes, euen as the Psalmist sang by him, thus: Sit gloria Domini in seculum seculi; Letabitur Dominus in operibus suis. That is in English, The glory of our Lord be it for euer and euer; our Lord reioyceth in his owne workes. So saith the Prophet. The Almighty Creator manifested himselfe by the great worke which he wrought at the beginning, and would that the creatures saw his greatnesse, and dwelt with him in euerlasting glory,

This world was not at first, but God himselfe made it, who was euer without beginning in his great glory and maiesty as mighty as now he is, & in his light as great, for he is very light it selfe, and life & truth, and the decree was ever in his resolved thought, that he would make these wonderfull creatures; & as by his great wisdom create them, so by his great loue also establish them, in the life which they were to inioy. Behold the holy trinity in these three persons: the almighty father comming of none other; and the great wisdome of that wise father, by himselfe begotten without beginning, who redeemed vs out of our bondage since, by taking flesh of the Virgin Mary. Now their loue, euer common to them both, is the Holy Ghost, who quickneth all things: so great and so mighty, that he with his grace enlightneth all the Angells of heanen, and all mens hearts on earth, who rightly believe on the living God: forgiveth also their sinnes all who willingly bewaile them: and without his grace there is no forgiuenesse.

He spoke also by the Prophets, who prophesied concerning Christ. For he is the will and very lone of the Father and the Sonne, as we said before. Senenfold grace he bestoweth on mankinde, (whereof I haue written already in another English Treatise) as the Prophet Esay hath recorded in the booke of his prophesie. The Almighty Creator when he shaped Angells, he made by his wisdome ten Armies of them in the first day; Many thousands very faire at the first Creation, that they in his glory might honour him, all bodilesse, bright and strong, without any sin, & liuing in perfection; of a nature so beautifull, as we are not able to expresse. And no euill was there among Angels then, nor came there any by Gods creation: for he is all good, & all that good is commeth of him. And the Angels dwelt then in glory with God. How then?

About 4½ lines, which were written twice by the scribe, have been struck out in MS. L.

Within six daies after, the true God shaped the world which he meant to create, one Angell of the rest most eminent, beheld how beautifull he was, and how shining in glory: and perceived his strength, and how mighty he was created: his honour also pleased him, and Lucifer was he called, that is light-bearing, for the exceeding brightnesse of his glorious feature. Then thought he it a thing too base for him to obey any Lord, being himselfe so eminent; & scorned to worship his Creator, and thanke him duly for that he had received: whereas he ought sure to submit himselfe so much the rather for the great glory that was bestowed vpon him. But he would not have his Maker to be Lord over him: nor continue in the truth of the true Sonne of God, who made him so faire: but thought by treason to get the kingdome and make himselfe God: such was his pride. And gathered forces earnestly to conspire with him in that his wicked purpose. Then had he no seat to sit on: for no part of heaven would beare him: nor might there any kingdome be his against the will of God, who made all. Then perceived this proud one what his power was: sith hee had no place to rest on; but fell downe, into deuill turned with all his complices, from the court of God to the paines of hell, as they deserved. Within six daies after this was done, Almighty God created man; Adam of the earth, with his owne hands, and gave him soule; and Eue of Adams rib soone after: that they & their offspring with them might enjoy that faire estate which the deuill forfeited, if they duly obeyed their Maker. We will follow the order of Moses the great commanders bookes, who wrote as God himselfe directed in their privat conference while he abode with God vpon mount Sinai forty daies together, & undertooke his law, fasting all that space for great example of reverence to the doctrine thereof. Five bookes he wrote of a wonderfull stile. In the same age began Paganisme to be set vp in many places throughout the world: as we have written heretofore in another treatise tending to the furtherance of our faith. In this age also the wicked people of the 5 cities in (the) land of the filthy male-lusting Sodomites were suddenly burnt all with fire & brimstone, together with their territories; except Lot only, whom God led thence with his three women, for his righteousnesse. Of Noes eldest son called Sem came the Hebrews, who beleueed on God, as Abraham and his forefathers. His father's name also was Thare, who dwelt first in the countrey of Chaldea till

Abraham went by God's commandement into the land of Canaan, where his posterity dwelt afterward. The Patriark Abraham had two sons, Ismael and Isaak; & he worshipped God with all his heart. And the God of heaven spoke oft vnto him, because of his great faith; in that he was willing to offer vnto God on his altar, for sacrifice used of old, his dearest son Isaak, if God so would. God then blessed him & his son was vnhurt: Gods selfe also made him a promise, that through his seed should all mankind be blessed; because of his great faith & obedience to God ward. Abraham, who by Gods appointment was ready to offer Isaak, is a tipe of our heavenly father, who sent his son to die for vs: and Isaak of our Sauiour Christ, who for vs was put to death. His youngest son but one was called Ioseph, was a great man there in the land under the king, who fauored him greatly. And he maintained there very honorably his father & all his brethern together with their children. And Ioseph liued happily in that land till he was a hundred and ten yeares old. And so the booke of Genesis here endeth. The second booke is called Exodus, which Moses wrote of the great miracles and ten plagues which Almighty God brought to passe upon king Pharao in this Moses time: who was borne, as this booke sheweth, and his brother Aaron, sons of Amram, in the daies

In all this history (which we have also translated into English) men may heare how the God of heaven spoke both by words and wonders vnto him. And he these things put in writing, as great mysteries for men to remember. The booke which he wrote, called the booke of Ioshua, sheweth how he went with the people of Israel vnto Abrahams country, and how he won it; and how the sunne stood still, while hee got the victory, and how he divided the land. This booke also I turned into English for Prince Ethelwerd, wherein a man may behold the great wonders of God really fulfilled. Hee was the sonne of Nun, and lived a hundred yeeres and ten over, then departed after his famous conquest: the people there thenceforth inhabiting, and living vnder the law of Moscs. Ioshua is a type of Iesus, in that he brought that people into the promised land; even as our Sauiour

After him knowne it is that there were in the land certaine Iudges ouer Israel who guided the people, as it is written in Libro Iudicum, that is, in the booke of Iudges. This booke euidently declareth vnto vs, how that nation, so long as they worshipped the God of heauen with care of his commandements, liued in peace; and so often as they forsooke the liuing God, were oppressed and put to shame by the heathen States bordering vpon them. Againe, when they called earnestly to God with true repentance, then sent he them aid by some Iudge to withstand their enemies, and deliuer them out of miserie: and so they dwelt long in the land. Of this who so hath desire to heare further, may reade it in that English booke which I translated

After these Iudges the people of Israel, as saith the historie, in the time of the faithfull Prophet Samuel, chose them kings, of whom are written distinctly foure bookes, which are entitled in Latine Liber Regum, the booke of Kings, so called all in one, and Verba dierum is placed next thereto for a fift booke, because of the manifold instruction therein contained, that is not in the other. These wrote Samuel and Malachim,* Herein we reade how Saul was first chosen king in Israel, to the end they might have some warriour to defend them against the heathen; so they made their desire knowne to the Prophet Samuel, that they would have a King of their owne nation as other nations in all countries had: and Samuel told the Lord, and the Lord granted that they should make Saul the sonne of Kish their King; and hee reigned after that the space of fortie yeeres, and that folke defended against the Gentiles like a stout shepherd his flocke; faultie though for many other things wherein hee offended. the sonne of Iesse, David that sweet Psalmist of the first Tribe, called Iuda was chosen of God for king in Israel to protect them; and he reigned with a strong hand, and maintained that people against all nations of the Gentiles who bordered vpon them, and he euer had the victorie; he slew the heathen at euery conflict, because he worshipped Almighty God with all his heart, and with good workes assured his kingdome, so as he held the same fortie yeeres together, and his memorie is famous in holy scripture. so put to flight the Philistines, all that fought against Saul, that he had the victory. He represents our Sauiour Christ, who is the strong champion that easily vanquisheth the cruell deuill, & getteth away from him all the faithfull into his Church; as Dauid took the sheepe from the wilde beasts. A holy Prophet is he and prophesied many things of our Sauiour Christ, as we may learne by the Psalmes, which he by the Spirit of God, & vnto the praise of God sung, and that Psalter also is one of the books which by the guidance of God he placed among other of the Bible.

He in his old age aduanced his son, the wise Solomon, to the Kingdom, who reigned from that time 40 yeeres in full peace euer, & for his great wisdom other Princes worshipped him, and came to him from countries far off: yea from all parts they came to honor him with presents: and he maintained his people without any war. He built also a goodly temple vnto the Lord in Ierusalem, so faire wrought with admirable workmanship, a frame of so sure foundation, so large & ouerlaid with pure silver & gold as we are not able to expresse. The Third is called Cantica canticorum; as much to say in English, as the chiefe of all songs, which he sung by Christ & his Church, that is, the whole Congregation beleeuing in Christ. And these books are still in the Bible. Some wicked were and fared very badly, while they had no care to serve God, nor God maintained them. And they defiled their people with abominations and led a profane life through vnbeleefe, and made an euill end with infamie; as Zedechias by name, that vnfortunate King, who was led in bonds to Babylon, where they slew his two children before his sight, and after blinded him and cast him into prison; and much wracke after befell the land. Nabuchodonozor that famous king of Chaldea came to Ierusalem with a great hoast, and slew the people, dismantled the citie, and destroied the temple foure hundred yeeres after it was built; and all for the infidelity of their kings who forsooke their God, and the peoples retchlesnesse who minded him not. So they led into captiuity both people and king; but him they handled most basely, that he might acknowledge, at least in bondage, his abominable offences against the God of heauen. So the king of Chaldea came home to his owne countrey with the spoile, and remnant of the army, wherein was that high-esteemed Prophet Daniel and the three children, whose names were Sidrac, Misaac, and Abednego; called otherwise also Ananias, Azarias, and Misael. These three were by the kings commandement cast into a burning Ouen [or Furnace], but their bonds were soone burnt off, and they walked vp and downe there vnhurt praising with a song the God of heaven, who so preserved them in the hot furnace, pæt heora fex næs furðon forswæled. ¬se kining hi het þa gan of 'pam ofne.

Here began the fift age of this world, which was continued so vntill Christ himselfe came on the sixth age thereof, in mans nature of Maries wombe; he that euer was God with his Almighty Father. The remnant of this vanquished people dwelt then in land of the Chaldeans vnder the king; and knew their sinnes against the omnipotent God: Seuenty yeares they dwelt there in bondage; vntill king Cyrus sent them backe againe into Inry from whence they were led; and commanded them to rebuild that only Temple, as hee was put in minde by the Lord; that he might shew mercy vnto his people after so great misery. And there they after dwelt vntill Christ himselfe was borne.

from his childhood, insomuch as the Lord himselfe said vnto him, I knew thee verily before I shaped thee in thy mothers wombe, and I sanctified thee before thou wert borne, and I have ordained thee a Prophet vnto the Nations. He led a holy life, and wrote a booke of his prophesie by inspiration of the Holy Ghost, of much and manifold instruction for men, concerning Christ also, in spirituall vnderstanding. He was oft in bands and east into prison for his holy doctrine, and bore most an end the peoples sinnes, as his booke telleth vs; at last was stoned to death in Egypt for his beliefe. Plato the Philosopher, and the wisest of Heathen men, had conference with him; and the Prophet then him directed, so as he might believe on the living God, as S. Augustine hath written. The Prophet Ezechiel was also carried away captine with the people when the king of Chaldea destroyed the Iewes, & drew the remnant of them to his land: at the same time when the Prophet Daniel was taken also. And then Ezechiel abode there in bondage, and prophesied there, & wrote a booke of a great volume of that Nation, & concerning our Sauiour, of very deepe vnderstanding, vntill the Gouernor of that captine people put him to death, as a learned Writer telleth vs.

Among these bookes the Church hath accustomed to place two other tending to the glory of God, and entituled Machabeorvm, for the great valor of that family who preuailed then so much in fight against the heathen forces encroaching much vpon them & seeking to destroy & root them from the land which God had given them, & so to empaire the glory of God himselfe. What then fel out? The worthy servant of God Mattathias with his 5: sons encountred the enemy much oftner then thou wilt believe. And they got the victory, through the true God, in whom they trusted according to Moses law. They would not fight with brave words only, how wel soever they spake, but took soon another course; lest that noted heavy time should come vpon them which the Prophet spoke of some generation, thus: Et iratus est farore Dominus in populo suo, &

Lex & Prophetæ usque ad Iohannem, sicut legitur in Euangelio: The law of Moses was and the Prophets, vntill Iohn was borne, who baptized Christ: and he is the end of the old law. At him also began the preaching of the Gospell, and he was borne against the comming of Christ: as the day-star in the morning riseth before the sunne, so shone Iohn in holy preaching before the face of our Sauiour, and was therein his harbenger and with his baptisme shewed the baptisme of Christ at hand. Christ selfe said of him, that there was not a greater man then he among the sonnes of women: yet in this comparison Christ is not reckoned, who was borne of a pure Virgin. Iohn wrote no booke himselfe, but his deeds be recorded in the Gospell of our Lord, whom he baptised, and whose forerunner he was both in life and death, and his fame is spread now thorowout all christendome, and wheresoeuer the Gospel or booke of Christ doth come.

And he is the first Euangelist in this volume. Marke the Gospeller, who followed Peter for instruction, and was his own son begotten in the Lord by his word, he wrote the second booke from the mouth of Peter, concerning such things as he learned of his doctrine in the city of Rome: as he was entreated by the faithfull there beleeuing in God through Peters preaching. Luke the Euangelist wrote the third booke; who from his childhood followed the Apostles & after accompanied Paul in his trauell, & learned of him the doctrine of the Gospell in sincerity of life; and this booke of Christ compiled in Achaa, and in the Greeke tongue; according as he had learned by the instruction of Paul and the other Apostles. Iohn, the Apostle began in Asia, entreated by the Bishops there, to write and that in Greeke the fourth book, concerning Christs diuinity: & of the deepe mysteries that were reuealed vnto him, when he leaned on his louely brest wherein was hid the treasure of heauen.

far & wide ouer the people of God. And these 4. Euangelists were foresignified by the vision of Ezechiel, Mathew in mans shape, Marke in a Lious, Luke in a calfs, and Iohn in an Eagles, for the mysteries by them signified. For Mathew wrote of Christ's manhood; and Marke as a roaring Lion called vpon mankinde wilde as in the wildernesse. And Luke began with Zacharias the Priest, which offered a calfe to God in sacrifice; and Iohn like an Eagle with his sharpe seeing eyes stedfastly beheld the high mysteries and wrote his Gospell of Christs Deitie.

These foure bookes declare how Christ, the Redeemer of the world, came (as the Prophets had fore-told) in mans nature of the Virgin Marie, about the sixt age of this world, at Bethlehem of Iudea, in the daies of that noble Emperour Augustus, and many thousands of angels solemnised his birth with heauenly songs. Then came three Kings from far, out of the East-country with presents unto Christ: and Herod killed all the young children that were in the Land with purpose so to kill Christ; but came not neere him, because he sought him with traiterous intent; and the wicked King died miserably. After the foresaid 12, he chose 72, to instruct for his disciples; whom he sent abroad vnto all townes where he meant to come, that men should not be ignorant of his comming, but we find not their names recorded in history. Then dwelt he in this world among men three and thirty yeeres and somewhat more; set up Christianitie, and made it manifest by his miracles, as his Gospell shewes, that he was the Son of God, when he raised dead men by his might, healed quickly what infirmitie soeuer, turned water into the liquor of wine, walked vpon the sea drie-foot, stilled the winds by his commanding word, east the deuils out of men possessed euen vnto madnesse, and restored their vnderstanding after it was lost. Redemption a willing death hanged on the Crosse, he rose also againe from death the third day, and ascended into heaven to his heauenly Father with victorie, and hath dominion ouer all; and shall come againe to judge all mankinde, each according to his works, at the great day. I tell this short, because I have written alreadie of these foure bookes, about fortie Sermons and more in the English tongue, where thou maist reade of this matter more fully than I have declared here. The Apostles gaue also instructions vnto the Nations receiving the Faith, that by consideration thereof their mindes might be confirmed in the faith of Christ throughout Christendome, which then newly began to spread by vertue of the great new Couenant. Peter the apostle wrote two Epistles, but larger than are read at Masse, which availe much to the establishing of Faith, and are reckoned in Canon of the Bible. So Iames the Iust wrote one Epistle of great instruction for all men, who observe any Christianity in their life. And Iohn the Euangelist to the honor of God compiled three Epistles, which are three bookes full of loue in teaching the people. Iulas the Apostle wrote also an Epistle, not the reprobate Iudas who betrayed Iesus, but holy Iudas that euer followed him. And heere are now 7. bookes of this ranke.

The Apostle Paul wrote many Epistles; for Christ set him to be a teacher of all nations, and in true sincerity he set downe the course of life, which the faithfull ought to hold, who betake themselues and their life vnto God: fifteene Epistles wrote this one Apostle, to the nations by him converted vnto the faith: which are large books in the Bible, and make much for our amendment, if we follow his doctrine, that was teacher of the Gentiles. He wrote to the Romans one, to the Corinthians two, and one to the Galathians, and one to the Ephesians, and one to the Philippians; two to the Thessalonians, and one to the Colossians, and one to the Hebrewes; two to his own disciple Timotheus, and one to Titus, and one to Philemon, and one to the Laodiceans; fifteene in all [sounding] as loud as thunder to [the eares of faithfull people. I will speake a few words hereof. But first of Iesus, how he taught in his holy Gospell vs all that love him: Si deligitis me, mandata mea servate, &c. If yee love me keepe my Hee that loueth me will observe my sayings: commandments. and my Father will loue him, and we will come vnto him, and remaine still with him from that time forward. Saujour loueth more the deed than smooth words. Words passe away; but works remaine. Wherevoon said Iames the righteous Apostle. Estote factores verbi, & non auditores tantum, fallentes vosmet ipsos: Be workers of the word, that is in very deeds; & deceive not your selues to listen vnto words only without works. And so Iohn taught vs in these words: Filioli mei, non diligamus uerbo, neque lingua, sed opere & ueritate. My deare children let vs not loue (I pray you) with word & tongue, but with work and truth. Concerning the same matter the Apostle Paul saith, Qui dicunt se nosse dominum, factis autem negant. They say they know the true God, but with their works they deny him. The man that vowes deceitfully, and giues his assurance to a matter, going from it againe, how can he hope for the assistance of our Sauiour? who seeth and considereth his heart, and that he will againe break word against him: but a man with his Lord, who will that we speake with him by works, must treat in earnest. For whose well speaketh, & regards not his word, doth condemn himselfe.

two books for the health of our soules. One of them is the Gospell of Christ; the other is called Actus Apostolorum, that is in English, The Acts of Apostles, [shewing] what they did while they were together, and how afterward they trauelled into farre countries as Iesus had commanded them in his holy Gospell, that they by their preaching should teach and convert all nations to the faith. Peter preached in the citie of Antioch, and there by his meanes were they first called Christians, and he went nery soone * after to Rome, and preached the faith there vnto the citizens fiue and twenty yeares with signes and wonders; vntill the Emperour Nero erucified him. went far and wide about the world preaching vnto many nations, till he at last came to Rome and taught there also; and Nero commanded him to be beheaded the same day that he hung Peter (on the Crosse). Andrew preached in Achaia & Scythia, & was after that erueified for the name of Iesus. Iames the younger, who was brother of Iohn, preached vnto the Iewes that were scattered of the 12 tribes, working also miracles among them, vntill king Herod beheaded him. His brother Iohn taught in Asia, the easterne parts of the world, & he Philip preached to the heathen people, who dwelt by the sea,* & thence went to Herapolis, & was there made away. Thomas taught the word among the Parthians & Medes, & in Hyrcania vntill he came to India, & there was slain for the true beleefe. Bartholomew preached also in India the farther, & there was slaine. Matthew preached in the land of the Ehiopians, that is, the Blackamores, & the king there, not a beleeuing but an Infidell king, put him to death. Iames the Iust staid still in Iudea, & at Ierusalem, preaching the faith vntill the Iewes killed him. Simon & Iuclas were both together martyred in Persia for the faith of Christ which they preached; where they made and gaue orders vnto Bishops in their twelue diuisions, vntill they were put to death. Matthias taught the word in Iury, he that was chosen in Iudas stead, to fil vp the Apostles number. own soules. Iohn lived here longest of them all, and he wrote in his banishment the booke called Apocalypsis, that is, the Revelution, which Christ manifested vnto him by vision in spirit, concerning our Sauiour himselfe & his Church: as also of doomesday and the deuillish Antechrist; and of the resurrection to everlasting life: and this is the last booke of the Bible.

I may tell thee yet something more concerning Iohn, whereby thou wilt beleeue that his words were workes, vnto a certaine young man (as the story telleth us) whom he loued, & had lost. The worthy and wise Author Ierome, who translated our Bible out of the Greeke and Hebrew bookes into Latine, he wrote concerning the holy Evangelist S. Iohn, the sonne of Christs Aunt, in the Church-historic called Ecclesiastica Historia, as followeth: Audi fabulam, non fabulam, sed rem gestam, de Iohanne Apostolo, &c. Heare this report, not as a tale, but as a thing truly done by Iohn the Apostle, and much worthy to be remembered of all the faithfull; done (I say) by him in his latter dayes. The deuellish Emperour called Domitian, who after Nero, appointed that cruell persecution of the Christians, and killed them with torments, he commanded this holy Apostle to be taken & bathed with boiling oile; because hot oile pierceth into the bones; and there was made ready oile for his bath: then brought they [and put] Iohn into the tub of boiling oile, and he was preserved by the power of God, and with body vnhurt came forth of the bath; as pure he was and free from fleshly lusts and filthy concupiscence. this, the cruell Emperour because Iohn would not leave his preaching commanded him to be banished farre off into an Isle called Pathmos. and there he remained vntill this Emperours owne retinue killed their Lord, as he was well worthy, for his crueltie and follie; and the Counsell then adjudged all void, and turned another way whatsoeuer hee before had wickedly purposed to bring to passe. So was the faithfull Apostle enlarged from that Isle [and sent] home to the eitie of Ephesus, where he working the wonders of God, and euer instructing the people to beleefe [aboad and] had his habitation. Then after a while went the Apostle, as the faithfull required him, to the townes thereabout, preaching the faith, and set vp Churches in euery province where none was before; & he established their gouernment with the order of priesthood, as the story saith he was euer directed by the holy Ghost to doe. He came then to a towne neere Ephesus, as he was intreated, and there consecrated a Bishop, and vnto the priests there dwelling himself declared the Church-Seruice, and in great estimation taught the inhabitants the faith of God, with a glad heart.

There saw Iohn among them a certaine young stripling in the flower of his time, of an excellent shape and strong constitution, a manly countenance, a cheereful hart, & subtill vnderstanding; & began of his owne gentle disposition to make much of the lad, with intent to beget [and win] him vnto Christ: then the Apostle looked vp, as to the new made Bishop, and thus said vnto him: Know thou Bishop, that my desire is thou take and instruct this young man at home with thee, and with a very especiall care I commit him to thy charge here before Christ and his Church. So the Bishop [very willing & blithely accepted that youth, and promised to have such earnest care of him, as the Apostle, while he staied there, againe and againe commanded, for he repeated his words, and often required that the Bishop should instruct the young boy in the holy Catholic Faith; and then departed home to his owne Bishopricke at Ephesus. The [other] Bishop vndertooke then the Lad, and Catechised him daily, and held him deare; at last baptized him, which assured confidence of his faith. And the youth there remained in good account, till the Bishop suffered him to goe at libertie, hoping hee should by the grace of God continue in ghostly good behauiour. But the young lad saw then quickly that he was of his owne power, in libertie unripe and manners unstaid, and began to incline much vnto all manner of vice and euill customes, with other of his age; who, being neuer better aduised, went on still after their vaine delights in sinne and wicked demeanure. Hee and his companions began then to delight in much bibbing and rambling by night, so they brought him on at first to steale, as they were wont, and he bent himselfe wholly to their sinfull manners, and followed that ungodly crew even to the greatest abominations: so at length after their instructions, hee durst aduenture of his owne accord vpon deeds moste fearefull [to be thought on]. And as a wilde horse vnbroken refuseth to obey his rider; so ran on this youngster in his fierce [and bold] attempts, and [was] by great offences hardned to despaire of his owne soules saluation, that trust he had none in his Lords mercy, and thereof made no reckoning, nor of the baptisme which he had received. Soone then after a while returned the Apostle vnto the foresaid towne where the Bishop dwelt that had sometime this young man in his retinue, as Iohn had commanded, and he entertained him with a very cheerefull countenance at the bishopricke; & when the Apostle had done his Lords worke, & all things fulfilled for which he was inuited, he then entred into this particular, and said, O thou Bishop, fetch me now that which I betooke vnto thee in my Lords behalf, as thou maist be informed by the testimony of this whole Church. The Bishop was abashed thereat, & weened that he meant some paiments or sums of money, other than he ever had of the Apostle, & yet he thought that S. Iohn would not tell him an vntruth, or aske that which he neuer left there, & was therefore in a doubtfull distraction of mind. Iohn then seeing him sit still in a maze, said again thus vnto him; I demand of thee now that young lad whom I left to thy charge, & that brothers soule whereof I have great commiscration. with weeping, and said vnto Iohn, Alas (my deare) he is now dead. Then asked Iohn hastily, & said; How is he dead, I pray thee, and of what death? And he thus answered againe, He is dead vnto God, for he is waxen full of all vice, & fallen from the faith, and he is now become a robber by the highway, and captaine of a company of robbers, which he hath gathered vnto him, & keepeth on the downes with many strong theenes of his retinue, being himselfe now their prince and leader. Then Iohn lamented the case out of measure, and shooke his head thereat, and said to the Bishop; Is this the care of thy brothers soule which I commended vnto thee? but make me now ready a well going horse, and a guide for the way that leads to these theeues: and they found soone for him that he desired; and he straight made great haste from the Church, vntill he saw where the theeues haunted, and fell directly into the hands of their watchmen: then laid they his guide fast, that he might not any way escape by flight; whereas he meant not to flie, nor had any thought thereof: but he eried aloud, I came vnto you of mine owne accord; bring me quickly to your chiefe. Sanctus, Sanctus, Sanctus, Dominus Deus Sabaoth, etc., in English Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hoasts, all the broadnesse of the earth is filled with his glory. The two Scraphins doubtles betokened the old & new testaments: which give the praise both of word and worke vnto the Almighty, who alone reigneth in vnity of Godhead without beginning and end. All teachers who take not their doctrine and examples out of these holy bookes are like those of whom Christ himselfe thus said, Cæcus si cæco ducatum præstet, ambo in foueam cadent: If the blinde man be leader of the blinde, then shall they both fall into some blinde pit: but such teachers as take their examples & doctrine from hence, whether it be out of the old Testament or the new are such as Christ himselfe againe spoke of in these words, Omnis scriba doctus in regno coelorum similis est homini patrifamilias, qui profert de thesauro suo nona & uetera: Euery learned scribe in the Church of God is like the Master of a family, who brings forth euer out of his owne treasure things new and old.

are divided some into two, because of their length, as a man may easily perceive who knowes their order. And into so many were the nations divided at the wonderful city which after Noahs floud the Giants would have built by decree before they parted. The like number of Disciples did our Saviour send to preach according to the contents of these books the Christian religion, which then through Christ himself & his Apostles entred vpon this world. Though many other books also there be written hereof by holy doctors, and far and wide had [& dispersed] throughout [all] Christendom, to the praise of Christ.

So the sixt age of this world reacheth from Christ vnto the day of doome, which no man knowes, but the Lord himselfe. A senenth age [of men] is that which runneth on together with [all] these six, from the righteous Abel vnto the worlds end, not of men liuing here but of soules departed & in that other life; whence they reiocic still in expectation of eternall life after their resurrection; as rise againe from death we must all with whole & sound bodies to meet our Lord. The eighth age is that one enerlasting day after our resurrection, whenwe shall reigne with God in euerlasting happinesse both of soule and body: of that day there shall be no end; and then the Saints shal shine as the Sun doth now. How can the man well fare, who turneth his heart away from these books; and is so selfe-conceited, that he had leiuer alway liue after his own imagination, from these so different, that he knowes nothing of Christs ordinances? The great Prophet Moses in his writing saith thus vnto all: Interroga patrem tuum & annunciabit tibi: maiores tuos, & dicent tibi: that is in English, Aske thy father concerning the true God, & he shall tell thee of him: enquire of thine ancients, and they shall shew thee. If thou wilt not learne & be directed here, thou shalt learne where thou wouldst not, in horrible torments, to know whom & whose ordinances thou hast contemned. Counsellours of state in time of too much euill among men, with wise deliberation ought to consider which pillar of the royall throne is broken, and that soone amend. The throne is founded upon these three [columnes or] pillars: LABORATORES, BELLATORES, ORATORES. Laboratores are plowmen and husbandmen, whose only is the charge to procure vs whereon to maintain life. Oratores be they who gain vs vnto God, & preserve the religion throughout all Christendome, and the service of God, as a spiritual labour, is only their charge for the behoofe of vs all. Bellatores are such as defend our cities & land, by force of armes withstanding an enemy that goes about to subdue vs, according to the doctrine of S<sup>t</sup> Paul, teacher of the Gentiles, who saith, Non sine causa portat miles gladium, &c. The [Magistrate or] Knight beareth not sword without cause: he is the Minister of God; in his owne place set, to worke reuenge vpon euill doers. These bee the three pillars [I say] that vphold the chaire of estate; & down that falls, if one of them be decaied; whereby the other become vn-seruiceable. But to what end should we meddle herewith? let them haue care thereof to whom it belongs.

The righteous God loueth right iudgements: but bribes too too commonly doe turne iustice out of the way, contrary to the Lords will: and euill befalls all men, where wrong so reigneth vncontrold. Whosoeuer will be the true [seruant &] Minister of God, must iudge rightly & according to the truth without reward. So shall he honour God, with his [vpright &] good dealing, and great shal his reward be at the Lords hand, who liueth & reigneth world without end. Amen.

Christ, but the most would not; and therefore perished. Much misery befell them, and of all sorts, after the passion of Christ, and slaine were many of them by sudden assaults: they themselves killed also Christs Apostles, Iames the younger and Iames the inst. Stephen also they [battered and] ouerwhelmed with hard stones; & heaped euill voon euill, to their owne mischiefe: nor would they lament nor with any repentance entreat his mercy: then sent he them horrible [signes &] tokens, & vtter destruction afterward by the people of Rome. Vespasian was Emperour at the same time, & he sent his son Titus against them with a great hoast of Romans, who besieged their city vntil there died of famin so many that they were faine for the loathsome smell, to cast the dead bodies over the walls; so weake as not able to defend themselves; they chewed their own girdles, & were glad to eat [very] grasse, & snatched one from another what little there was: yea meat out of mouth, as vtterly void of all [naturall &] nationall compassion: boothaylers also [among them] ran vp and downe the streets, & threatening sore all men sought narrowly for meat hidden in their storehouses; & beat each one, that anything had, and durst gainsay their madnesse: it is not to be spoken of the shamefull abomination that there was done. with that intolerable famin many a hundred of that miserable nation, yea more than we wil say; & the boothailers at length slew each other, & the city was taken & laid leuell to the ground, that there was not left one stone vpon another, as our Sauiour said before his passion. Of the young children, all that remained after the famine throughout all the land, they led away to be put to worke [fine purple cloth] wheresoeuer they were captives:* & of these came the Iewes in most places yet liuing: this was the reward of their wickednes; & the paine of hell thereto, which is more heavy for them to beare.

Now maist thou well vnderstand that the worke speaketh more than the naked word, which profits not. Yet is there good worke euen in good words; as when a man teacheth & edifieth another in the faith by [his] true doctrine; & when a man vttereth wisdome for the behoofe & direction of many, to the praise of God, who commandeth ouer all. Amen.

When I was with thee, thou wentst about to perswade me to drink liberally, as 'twere for delight, and beyond my custome; but know thou deare friend, that whose forces another man to drinke more then he is able, shall answer for both if any harme come thereof.

The holy and learned fathers also have since our Saujour put downe that enormitie by their doctrine: and taught that man should so drinke as it doe not hurt him: for ouer drinking surely destroyes a mans soule & safety: and [much] sicknesse [of body] comes thereon.

Whosoeuer shall write out this booke, let him write it according to the copy; and for Gods lone correct it [well] that it be not [found] faulty, lest he thereby be discredited, & I shent.

LIBER GENESIS

CAP. I.—l. In principio creanit Deus coelum et terram.—2. Terra autem erat inanis et uacua, et tenebræ erant super faciem abyssi: et Spiritus Dei ferebatur super aquas.—3. Dixitque Deus: Fiat lux. Et facta est lux.—4. Et uidit Deus lucem quod esset bona: et diuisit lucem a tenebris.—5. Appellauitque lucem Diem, et tenebras Noctem: factumque est uespere et mane dies unus.—6. Dixit quoque Deus: Fiat firmamentum in medio aquarum: et diuidat aquas ab aquis.—7. Et fecit Deus firmamentum, divisitque aquas quae erant sub firmamento ab his quae erant super firmamentum. Et factum est ita.—8. Vocauitque Deus firmamentum coelum, et factum est uespere et mane dies secundus.

(Triginta autem annorum erat quando circuiuit omnes regiones Ægypti),—47. Venitque fertilitas septem annorum; et in manipulos redactæ segetes congregatæ sunt in horrea Ægypti.—48. Omnis etiam frugum abundantia in singulis urbibus condita est.—49. Tantaque fuit abundantia tritici, ut arenæ maris coæquaretur, et copia mensuram excederet.—50. Nati sunt autem Ioseph filii duo antequam ueniret fames.—51. Vocanitque nomen primogeniti, Manasses.—52. Nomen quoque sceundi appellauit Ephraim.—53. Igitur transactis septem ubertatis annis, qui fuerant in Ægypto.—54. Cæperunt uenire septem anni inopiæ, quos prædixerat loseph; et in uniuerso orbe fames prænalnit, in cuncta autem terra Ægypti panis erat.—55. Qua esuriente, clamauit populus ad Pharaonem, alimenta petens. Quibus ille respondit: Ite ad Ioseph: et quidquid ipse nobis dixerit, facite.—56. Crescebat autem quotidie fames in omni terra: aperuitque Ioseph uniuersa horrea, et uendebat Ægyptiis: nam et illos oppresserat fames.

aperuimus saccos nostros, et inuenimus pecuniam in ore saccorum: quam nunc eodem pondere reportauimus.—22. Sed et aliud attulimus argentum, ut emamus quæ nobis necessaria sunt: non est in nostra conscientia quis posnerit eam in marsupiis nostris.—25. At ille respondit: Pax uobiscum, nolite timere: Deus uester, et Deus patris uestri dedit uobis thesauros in saccis uestris: nam pecuniam, quam dedistis mihi, probatam ego habeo. Eduxitque ad eos Simeon.—24. Et lauerunt pedes suos, deditque pabulum asinis eorum.—25. Illi nero parabant munera, donec ingrederetur Ioseph.—26. Et adorauerunt proni in terram.—27. At ille, clementer resalutatis eis, interrogauit eos, dicens: Saluusne est pater uester senex, de quo dixeratis mihi? Adhuc uiuit.—28. Qui responderunt: Sospes est seruus tuus pater noster, adhuc uiuit.—29. Ioseph uidit Beniamin fratrem suum uterinum, et ait: Iste est frater uester paruulus, de quo dixeratis mihi? Et rursum: Deus, inquit, misereatur tui, fili mi.—30. Festinauitque quia commota fuerant uiscera eius super fratre suo, et erumpebant laerymæ: et introiens cubiculum fleuit.—31. Rursumque lota facie egressus, continuit se, et ait: Ponite panes.

Feceruntque similiter malefici Ægyptiorum incantationibus suis: et induratum est cor Pharaonis, nec audiuit eos, sicut præceperat Dominus.—23. Auertitque se, et ingressus est domum suam, nec apposnit cor etiam hac uice.—24. Foderunt antem omnes Ægyptii per circuitum fluminis aquam ut biberent: non enim poterant bibere de aqua fluminis.—25. Impletique sunt septem dies, postquam percussit Dominus fluuium.

Cumque operuisset superficiem terræ, apparuit in solitudine minutum, et quasi pilo tusum in similitudinem pruinæ super terram.—15. Quod cum uidissent filii Israel, dixerunt ad inuicem: Manhu? quod significat: Quid est hoc? ignorabant enim quid esset. Quibus ait Moyses: Iste est panis, quem Dominus dedit uobis ad uescendum.—16. Hic est sermo, quem præcepit Dominus: Colligat musquisque ex eo quantum sufficit ad uescendum: gomor per singula capita.—17. Feceruntque ita filii Israel: et collegerunt, alius plus, alius minus.—18. Nec qui plus collegerat, habuit amplius: nec qui minus parauerat, reperit minus: sed singuli iuxta id quod edere poterant, congregauerunt.

- 15. Ait ad eos: Estote parati in diem tertium, et ne appropinquetis uxoribus uestris.—16. Iamque aduenerat tertius dies, et mane inclaruerat: et ecce cœperunt audiri tonitrua, ac micare fulgura, et nubes densissima operire montem, claugorque buccinæ uehementius perstrepebat: et timuit populus qui erat in eastris.—17. Cumque eduxisset cos Moyses in occursum Dei, steterunt ad radices montis.—18. Totus autem mons Sinai fumabat: eo quòd descendisset Dominus super eum in igne, et ascenderet funus ex eo: eratque omnis mons terribilis.—19. Et sonitus buccinæ paulatim crescebat in maius, et prolixius tendebatur: Moyses loquebatur, et Deus respondebat ei.—20. Descenditque Dominus super montem Sinai in ipso montis uertice, et uocauit Moysen in cacumen eius. Dixit ad eum:—21. Descende, et contestare populum: ne forte uelit transcendere terminos, et pereat.—22 Sacerdotes quoque qui accedunt ad Dominum, sanctificentur, ne percutiat eos.—23. Dixitque Moyses ad Dominum: Non poterit unlgus ascendere in montem Sinai: tu enim iussisti, dicens: Pone terminos circa montem, et sanctifica illum.—24. Cui ait Dominus: Vade, descende: ascendesque tu, et Aaron tecum: sacerdotes autem et populus ne transeant terminos, nec ascendant ad Dominum, ne forte interficiat illos.—25. Descenditque Moyses ad populum, et omnia narrauit eis.

CAP. XXVI.—1. Ego Dominus Deus uester: Non facietis uobis idolum et sculptile.—3. Si mandata mea custodieritis,—4. Et terra gignet germen suum, et pomis arbores replebuntur.

<sup>21.</sup> Dabo benedictionem meam nobis anno sexto, et faciet fructus trium annorum:—22. Seretisque anno octauo, et comedetis ueteres fruges usque ad nonum annum: donec noua nascantur.—23. Terra quoque nou uendetur in perpetuum: quia mea est, et uos aduenæ et coloni mei estis.—25. Si attenuatus frater tuus uendiderit possessiunculam suam.—27. Computabuntur fructus ex eo tempore quo uendidit: et quod reliquum est, reddet emptori.—37. Pecuniam tuam non dabis ad usuram.—39. Si paupertate compulsus uendiderit se tibi frater tuus, non eum opprimes seruitute famulorum,—42. Mei enim serui sunt, et ego eduxi eos de terra Ægypti.—44. Seruus et ancilla sint uobis de nationibus quæ in circuitu uestro sunt,—45. Et de aduenis qui peregrinantur.—55. Mei enim sunt serui, filii Israel, quos eduxi de terra Ægypti.

Sequenti die regressus inuenit germinasse uirgam Aaron: et eruperant flores, qui, foliis dilatatis, in amygdalas deformati sunt.—9. Protulit ergo Moyses omnes uirgas de conspectu Domini ad cunctos filios Israel: uideruntque et receperunt singuli uirgas suas.—10. Dixitque Dominus ad Moysen: Refer uirgam Aaron in tabernaculum testimonii, ut seructur ibi in signum filiorum Israel, et quiescant querelæ eorum a me, ne moriantur.—11. Fecitque Moyses sicut præceperat Dominus.

Moyses sicut præceperat Dominus.

CAP. XVIII.—1. Dixitque Dominus ad Aaron: Tu, et filii tui, et domus patris tui tecum simul sustinebitis peccata sacerdotii uestri.—2. Sed et fratres tuos de tribu Leui sume tecum, et ministrent tibi: tu autem et filii tui ministrabitis in tabernaculo testimonii.

Post hæc amauit mulierem quæ uocabatur Dalila.—5. Veneruntque ad eam principes Philisthinorum, atque dixerunt: Decipe eum, et disce ab illo, in quo habeat fortitudinem: quod si feceris, dabimus tibi argenteos.—6. Locuta est ergo Dalila ad Samson: Dic mihi, obserro, in quo sit tua maxima fortitudo.—7. Cui respondit Samson: Si septem neruiceis funibus ligatus fuero, infirmus ero.—6. Attuleruntque ad eam satrapæ Philisthinorum septem funes: quibus uinxit eum,—9. Latentibus apud se insidiis, clamauitque ad eum: Philisthiim super te, Samson. # APPENDIX I

(A) THE LATE OE. NOTES OF MS. CLAUDIUS B. IV.

In his description of British Museum MS. Cotton Claudius B. IV., Wanley (Catalogus, pp. 253-4) calls attention to the presence in this fine manuscript of numerous historical notes written partly in Latin and partly in English. These notes are derived mainly from the writings of Josephus, Pseudo-Methodius, and an authority who is called Normannus. Dr. James has also pointed out to me that he quotes a few lines of the History of Assenath, enough to show that he was using the larger Latin text and not the abridgment. Wanley's reference is as follows: "Quod Cod. hunc attinet, videtur scriptus paullo ante Conquisitionem Angliæ, per totum illustratur Iconibus Historicis, rudiori tamen manu delineatis, quam plurimis in locis, manu recentiori, insignitur Adnotationibus historicis Latinis nonnullisque Saxonicis ex Josepho, Methodio, etc."

The OE. notes are written in a uniform hand. The general appearance is rather late; but the Anglo-Saxon forms of r and gare preserved. We may date the notes about the second half of the twelfth century, and the original MS. hand 1025-1050. These notes appear to be the work of a scribe imperfectly acquainted with English, though accustomed to the English hand. Some of the notes [e.g. (1)] seem to argue that he was copying notes supplied to him, and copying them unintelligently, since he occasionally omits words necessary to the sense. Especially noteworthy is his confusion of 8 and d. The letter p has often a stroke across the top ( $\mathfrak{p}$ ), even where it does not denote the contraction for pat. The contraction mark is used in forms like ewed, ewad, etc., even when the word is written in full. The dialect has a distinctly southeastern tinge, which accords with the fact (see Appendix III infra) that Claudius B. IV. formerly belonged to the Library of St. Augustine's at Canterbury.

( $\beta$ ) In addition to the nine cases above, where the OE. word is glossed with a complete word, there are many instances (too numerous to quote in full) where marks or letters have been inserted to facilitate for the Norman reader the understanding of the OE. text.

The commonest of these is a short perpendicular mark, which is equivalent to i. It occurs most frequently over the prefix ge, evidently implying that it is to be read as i, but also occasionally over a single g or y, e.g. gewylde, gebunden, gehalgod, geefsod, gelæddon, gefengon, etc.; also in pys, fyrste, wynstre, etc., and in fægnodon (xvi. 1), læg (iv. 20). In mædenum, iii. 6, it obviously denotes the diphthong ai.

A mark like c—a hastily written e—is commonly placed over y when it is to be pronounced as e: e.g. gewylde, alysednysse, tyn, fyrde, fynd, byman, gehynde, cwyrne, yldost, deofolgyld, ælfryd, bytle, etc.

Two perpendicular strokes thus over g denote that g is to be pronounced w: e.g. agenum, hagenes, astogene, burga, gebulyon, abugan, etc.

The pronoun him has almost invariably an a over the i, thus transforming it into the ME. ham.

The affricate pronunciation of c is indicated by inserting h after it, above the line: e.g. cinban, undeadlice, cilde and cyson (?).

Where c is to be pronounced hard, k is written above it: e.g. drince, brucon, cynegum, Saraceniscum, cene, stician, gefylce, teldsticcena, swylce (xiv. 6), forcearf (xvi 19).

An o is written above the y of gefylce = ifolke, and of hyra =  $\ddot{o}$ ? (vi. 8).

APPENDIX II

THE C-TEXT OF THE OE. PROSE GENESIS (Cambridge University Library MS. I i. 1. 33.)

THE C-text of the OE. Prose Genesis offers two problems for solution. The first concerns the version and the second the dialect. Both have been dealt with by Dr. F. H. Chase in an article entitled "A New Text of the Old English Prose Genesis." While I am unable to accept all Dr. Chase's conclusions, I wish to express my indebtedness to him.

The question of the origin of the version has no very intimate connection with the problem of dialect, so that we can deal first with the origin of the C-text of Genesis, and then turn to the investigation of its dialect.

Ι

The problem of the C-text of the OE. Prose Genesis is briefly this, that while elsewhere it is in close agreement with MSS. B and L, it gives us in Genesis, chaps. iv., v., x., xi., xxiii. and xxiv., a new version of the Vulgate, which is to a great extent independent of that in the other two MSS.

A careful examination of the two texts has confirmed the results of the following statement by Dr. Chase: "In the Epistle to Æðelweard and Genesis, caps. i.—iii., B and C are practically identical, caps. iv. and v. are radically different (except in iv. 18, where the resemblance may well be fortuitous). In caps. iv. and v., C is much more literal than B, which often develops into a mere paraphrase. In iv. 1–22 B is as full, if not fuller, than C, but for the remainder of iv. and v., where B is concise and full of omissions, C is practically complete. Caps. vi.—ix. are identical in B and C, while in x. and xi., where B is again meagre and fragmentary in the extreme, C gives a much fuller version, showing an advance in skill over caps. v. and vi. For xii.—

xxii. 19, the two MSS. again correspond: C adds a statement regarding Nahor's children (summing up Gen. xxii. 20-24), with an appended reference to the Latin for particulars, the whole of which is quite in Ælfric's manner. In xxiii.-xxiv. 22 (where MS. C ends), the most casual examination reveals a connection between versions B and C: C is, on the whole, still much fuller; but several verses are substantially identical in the two texts, and nearly every verse has so many elements common to B and C as to prove some close dependence of one on the other. The errors have practically vanished from C, but B still reveals more perfect mastery of the subject matter, and a clearly-defined selective principle in translation, which is lacking in C" (Chase, p. 245).

If we accept the above analysis as correct, C presents us with three kinds of text:

- (1) Preface to Genesis, Gen. caps. i.-iii., vi.-ix., xii.-xxii. 19

  = Text identical with that of B and L.
- (2) Gen. iv.-v., x.-xi. = Completely new text.
- (3) Gen. xxiii.-xxiv. = Text where C and B L are interdependent.

Before theorising, it will be well to try to set down all that is known to us about the origin of the OE. Prose Genesis, together with any other relevant facts.

- (1) In the first place it is clear from Ælfric's Preface to Genesis, that he translated (at least) the earlier part of the book of Genesis ("to Isáace") for Æðelweard, and also, I think, that no adequate translation of this section was known to Æðelweard, though he had a translation "fram Isaace . . . op ende" by "another man." Ælfric's own words are: "Du bæde me, leof, þæt ic sceolde ðe awendan of Ledene on Englisc þa boc Genesis: ða þuhte me hefigtime þe to tiþienne þæs, ¬ þu ewæde þa, þæt ic ne þorfte na mare awendan þære bec buton to Isaace, Abrahames suna, for þam þe sum oðer man þe hæfde awend fram Isaace þa boc op ende" (Ælfric's Preface).
- (2) In the De Veteri Testamento, after describing the contents of Genesis and Exodus, Ælfric says: "Da twa bec we nemnodon: Leuiticus is seo pridde. . . . On ealre pare racu, pe we habbað awend witodlice on Englisc." Here Genesis appears with the rest of the Pentateuch among the books which Ælfric claims to have translated into English. It would seem, therefore, that Ælfric, before the composition of his Treatise on the Old Testament, had translated not only the earlier, but also the later part of Genesis. We have no positive evidence as to whether he is here referring to the book which he had done for Æðelweard or not. We know that, in spite of his declaration at the end of his Preface to Genesis that he would translate no more of the Bible, he actually translated the Hexateuch and other portions of the O.T.; and certain facts to which I now wish to draw attention seem to suggest that there may have existed a text of Ælfric's version of Genesis which differed in certain not unimportant particulars from the so-called "standard" text handed down in MSS. B and L.

(3) The first point (already noted by Dr. Chase) is that the summary of Gen. xxii. 20-24, though occurring in the C-text and not in B or L, is quite in Ælfric's manner, as the following parallel shows:

Gen. xxii. C.

Him wiarð siððan gesæd þæt.xii. sunu wæron acennodon his breðer nachor (þære naman sind awritene on þære Ledenrace, ræde þær se ðe willan Gen. xxiv. 15-20 L.

n he pær Isááce wif gefette, swa hyne hys hlaford het n him god wisode, swa hit on pære Ledenbec awriten ys, ræde pær se pe wylle.

Secondly, MS. B (Cotton Claudius B. IV.) contains on foll. 51<sup>R</sup> and 51<sup>V</sup> a marginal note in alliterative prose which has every appearance of being a genuine summary by Ælfric of the contents of Gen. xxxiii. 18–xxxv. 8, derived from an early MS. by the annotator of B. The note runs as follows:

"and côm to salem cester on sichem | † hîs in chanaan lânde.

The third point, to which I would draw attention, and which has not, I believe, been noted before, is that the close of MS. Otho B. 10

[fol. 166] as preserved by Wanley (Cat., p. 192) differs considerably from the text of B and L:1

Gen. Cap. L. 26. B-Text.

Iosep forbferde þa he wæs anhund wintra ¬ tinwintre. ¬ hine man bebyrigde mid wyrtgemange. He wæs gelæd of (sic!) his stowe of Egypta lande. [fol. 72<sup>v</sup>.]

Gen. Cap. L. 26. O-Text (Wanley).

Iosep forðferde þa þa he wæs an hund wintra and ten wintra and hine man bebyrigde mid wyrtgemange. He wæs gelæd to his earde of Egypta lande to his agenum gecynde i wearþ bebirged on middon his agenum cynne þær his lichama hine gerestað oð þisne andweardan dæg. Sy lof, i wuldor þam wellwillendan hælend aa on ecnysse. Amen. [fol. 166.]

Were it not that the "Incipit" of the Genesis section of MS. O, as given by Wanley, is practically identical with the version in B and L, and that the variants in the surviving fragments of O are chiefly orthographical or phonological, one might have been tempted to assume from its closing passage that what O contained was a homily by Ælfric on the life of the Patriarch Joseph (somewhat akin to his homily on Judges), which kept fairly close to the text of the Vulgate. The comparatively early date of O favours the assumption that O preserves the original ending of Genesis, which may, however, have been lost in the prototype of B and L, or may have been struck out by Ælfric in a later revision.

The close of the Otho text, the C-summary of Gen. xxii. 20-24, and the summary of Gen. xxxiii. 18-xxxv.'8, preserved in the marginal gloss to B (if my suggestion that the summary is Ælfric's be accepted), all favour the assumption that the so-called "standard" text preserved in B and L has undergone certain modifications, and that there may indeed have existed a first draft of Ælfric's version of which Gen. xxiii.-xxiv. 22 in the C-text is the most considerable survival.<sup>2</sup>

There still remains the problem of the authorship of caps. iv., v., x. and xi. in the C-text. Here I am in complete agreement with Dr. Chase when he declares that the version in these chapters cannot be by Ælfric. It is for the most part baldly literal, though not always accurate, and shows nothing of Ælfric's easy style in translation.

A positive conclusion is, however, more difficult of attainment. Dr. Chase leans to the view that Gen. iv., v., x. and xi. are taken from a pre-Ælfrician version. But for this there does not appear to be sufficient evidence. Such as there is, points the other way. early translation of this portion of Genesis seems to have been known to Æðelweard; had such existed, it is hard to see why he should have bothered the unwilling Ælfric to make one for him. It may be objected that there may have been an earlier Anglian version unknown to Æðelweard, who was probably well acquainted with any West Saxon scholar capable of translating Genesis. But history is silent about the existence of such a translation, and a careful examination of the C-text has failed to reveal any characteristically Anglian forms except the g-preterite of geseon which occurs twice in the "new text," but which, after all, is found in very late WS. manuscripts. Such slight variation in vocabulary as there is points to C being the later text. C prefers God to Drihten in B and L, and gear to winter. On the other hand, C seems to prefer gereord, where B The evidence from vocabulary is therefore slight and L have spræc. and inconclusive.

The phonology of the C-text (cf. Section II, infra) supports the theory of a WS. original. It may, however, be granted at once that the "new" portion of the C-text cannot be as late as 1150, the date of the manuscript. The style is that of the eleventh century rather than the twelfth, and may well be almost contemporary with Ælfric. The translator shows a preference for parataxis, but only because he is keeping close to the original Latin. It is clear that the author of the "new" version cannot have been the scribe of C, but whether the scribe of C was the "contaminator" admits of very great doubt.

Where so much is uncertain, it is dangerous to theorise. Those who like the practice will find ample material in Dr. Chase's article (cf. p. 5, supra). All that can be claimed with certainty is that there existed manuscripts of Genesis containing no inconsiderable variations from the text preserved in MSS. B and L. A fairly plausible case may perhaps be made out for the existence of an earlier and a later draft by Ælfric himself. It is quite possible that Ælfric, having translated Genesis in whole or in part, kept his version by him, making excisions and such other alterations as seemed good to him, and that copies of the unrevised version may have got abroad. Gen. xxiii.—xxiv., the summaries missing in B and L, and possibly the story of Joseph in O may have belonged to an unrevised draft, while the text of B and L may represent Ælfric's final revision of his translation.

As to the origin of the non-Ælfrician parts of C, it would seem at least probable that they represent a valiant effort by some unknown scribe of the eleventh century to provide his monastery with as complete a version of Genesis as possible, rather than the work of a forerunner of Ælfric. He doubtless had several manuscripts in front of him, and sometimes followed the one and sometimes the other. Where all failed him or failed to please him, he gave us specimens of his own skill, or want of skill, in the art of translation.¹ This "contaminated" text was probably re-copied somewhere about the middle of the twelfth century, by a man who spoke a border patois, and who was perhaps a native of somewhere in the neighbourhood of Berkshire, but who in any case was scarcely a Kentish man.

The Dialect of the C-Text

The dialect of C has been briefly dealt with by Dr. Chase (l. c., pp. 250-1). His conclusion is summed up in the two following paragraphs:

"The dialect of C is marked by the following peculiarities, which stamp it as of Kentish origin:

ē = WS. æ: strēta, 10, 11; hiwrēdæne, 10, 32; pēr, 11, 2.
 ia = WS. ea: wiarð, 22, 20; sialde, 23, 9; twyfialdan, īa, īja = WS. ēa: brīac, 4, 25; dīadan, 23, 6; bīad, 23, 12.

23, 17.

iea = WS. ēa, eo: dieadan, 23, 4; abieah, 23, 7; hieardum (= heordum), 10, 31.

yo = WS.  $\bar{e}o$ : byo (= beo, imv.), 23, 11.

"These Kentish peculiarities are by no means confined to the six chapters here printed, but occur throughout the MS. I subjoin lists of cases, which, while not exhaustive, will serve to support my statement. (In these lists, as in those above, I quote no pronominal forms.)

- e = WS. æ: geliffeste, Epistle, p. 23, 19 (Grein); hebbende, Gen. 1, 12; feder, 12, 1; deges, 17, 27; becc (= bæc), 19, 26.
- e = WS.  $\bar{a}$ : dedbota, Epistle, p. 24, 1; megpum, Gen. 9, 12; spece, 15, 1; cwedon, 19, 12; sed, 21, 12; also adrefed, 3, 24; arerde, 13, 18.
- ia = WS. ea: biarn, 6, 4; wiard, 15, 1; getiald, 15, 6; forgiaf, 20, 16.
- ia, ya = WS. ēa, eā: bebiad, 6, 22; sceamlyasan, 19, 24; lifliase, 20, 7; diad, 20, 7; forgiafe, 15, 7; sciapum, 21, 27.
- iea = WS. ea: andwieardan, 15, 16; gesieah, 19, 1; wiearð, 19, 25.

 $yo = WS. \bar{e}o: byo\delta, 9, 7.$

"It will thus be seen that the dialectic forms, as well as the merely late forms noted above (The most important 'merely late' forms quoted by Dr. Chase are gestrunde, sunde, and untumende—Ed.) are confined to no one section of the MS.; they are not more characteristic of the new chapters than of the Ælfric text, nor of the portion 'before Isaac' than of that which follows the appearance of this, for us, so important personage. They simply prove, so far as my studies yet show, that the contaminator to whom we are indebted for MS. C lived in Kent, late in the twelfth century."

A reconsideration of the material at our disposal will, I believe, show that Dr. Chase's conclusions require to be modified in certain important particulars.

In the first place, it seems to be far from certain that the scribe whose dialectal peculiarities appear in C was necessarily the "contaminator." Had he been so, we should have expected his language to have been more consistently twelfth-century in character; but, in fact, late and dialectal forms are sporadic, and throughout there are signs that the scribe was copying from a more or less standard Late West Saxon original. In almost every case pure Late WS. forms can be adduced beside the dialectal variations. Admittedly it is difficult to decide how far this may have been due to the influence of the West Saxon literary dialect upon the scribe; but in the present instance I incline to the view that the "contamination" took place before the twelfth century.

In the second place, while it may be readily granted that the majority of the forms quoted above by Dr. Chase are found in manuscripts which are usually regarded as Kentish, some of them (e. g.  $\bar{e} = WS$ .  $\bar{e}$ ) are not confined to Kentish, and others (e. g. y = WS.  $\bar{e}$ ) are not Kentish at all; but in addition, a glance at the analysis of the non-WS. forms in C, given below, will show that he has overlooked or failed to see the significance of many other equally important dialectal criteria, and that some of those forms which Dr. Chase dismisses as "merely late" are extremely valuable as indications of the district to which the scribe belonged.

Vocabulary

gereord ,, ,, spræc.

The peculiar form unminsienlic (P) for unmiltsigendlic seems to be due to confusion with minsian, to diminish.

(γ) ACCIDENCE

§ 50. Apart from a general tendency to disintegration and confusion in the inflectional endings, the most notable features in the accidence of the C-text are as follows:

(1) The plural of sunu is frequently sunus (sunas, sunes).

(2) The p-forms of the definite article are often substituted for the s-forms, though in other respects the declension is well preserved.

(3) There are several examples of the substitution of the present participle for the dative infinitive: e.g. to gereordiende (1, 30), to wæteriende (11, 10).

From the evidence before us, it will be immediately seen that the dialectal forms of C are by no means homogeneous, and cannot be assigned to a single dialect. Dr. Chase's plea for a Kentish origin receives very weak support. The most trustworthy test-form for the Kentish dialect is conspicuous by its almost complete absence. I have noted only two examples—anwerde (xviii), behelde (iii), and of these the former is negligible because the e occurs in a secondarily accented Indeed the chief trace of Kentish is to be found in the representation of WS, ea. Forms such as biarn, diad, sceamly as an, lyeuum, gesical, have an irresistibly Kentish look about them; but it is not certain that all these spellings were confined to Kentish, since we find examples of them as far west as Winchester (Williams: Cod. Winton. Anglia, xxv, 499), and a spelling like sciap shows us that West Saxon forms were not exempt from the influence of what may at first have been a strictly Kentish orthography. In this connection, I should like to say that I do not know on what grounds ie, ye for WS. ea are usually assumed to be Kentish. So far as my knowledge goes they occur first in the West Saxon Gospels (cf. Trilsbach's Diss., p. 60), and sporadic examples are found in the Codex Wintoni-ensis, and the Laud MS. of the Heptateuch, none of which are Kentish. Examples elsewhere seem to be exceedingly rare.

WS.  $\tilde{a} > \tilde{e}$  may be used corroboratively, but can scarcely be regarded in itself as a good test in this instance.

The evidence of Anglian influence is weaker. In § 8 we have a large number of examples of the unrounding of WS. y (i-umlaut of u) to i, but how far this unrounding is confined to Anglian districts is very doubtful (cf. Luick, § 287, anm. 3, and H. C. Wyld, Englische Studien, 47). Before  $l + \mathbf{cons}$ . a for ea occurs in alle (v1), falde (xvIII), and aldorman (xxI). There are two examples of g-preterites of geseon-gesega (xI), and geseaga (xXI); the p.ptc., however, is gesewen. There are one or two examples of unsyncopated presents: h def ext (xIX).

On the other hand, the South-Western element in the C-text is very marked: u = WS. y (§§ 8-9); o, u = WS.  $\check{e}o$  (§ 10); u, y, uo = WS.  $\bar{e}o$  (§ 21); u, iu = WS.  $\bar{y}$  (§§ 22-3).

Our results point to a border dialect, and correspond in several important features with Professor Wyld's account of The Surrey Dialect in the Thirteenth Century. According to Professor Wyld and his pupil Miss Serjeantson, Surrey had:

- (1)  $u = OE. \tilde{y}$ .
- (2)  $u, o = OE. \, e\tilde{o}$ .
- (3) A mixture of fractured and unfractured forms of OE.  $\check{\alpha}$  before  $l+\cos$ .
- (4) Generally e = OE.  $\alpha$ .
- (5) [In regard to \(\overline{a}\) (where the C-text seems to prefer \(e\)), Wyld is doubtful, but thinks that Surrey had both tense and slack forms.]
- (6)  $e\bar{a} i > \bar{e}$ .

Before comparing the dialect of C with Professor Wyld's conclusions, it has to be noted that Professor Wyld is concerned with the dialect of Surrey in the thirteenth century, whereas C belongs to about the middle of the twelfth century; and that the scribe of C was most probably copying from an older manuscript or manuscripts.

The last-mentioned point may explain the variation between i and u forms for OE. y (§§ 8-9). At the same time it is possible that the scribe of C may have come from a district where i and u forms intermingled. Like Surrey, C has a marked predilection for u, o (and even y) for OE.  $\check{eo}$ . There is also a great amount of agreement in regard to (4) OE.  $\alpha$  > e. The predominance of e-forms in §§ 15-16 would at first sight suggest a more eastern or northern dialect than Surrey, but the value of the e is uncertain, and it may in many cases represent a slack e. The greatest divergences between C and the Surrey dialect come under (3) and (6). As regards  $e\bar{a}$ , the characteristic spellings ia, ya, ie, ye, etc., of §§ 11-13, 20 are absent from the documents investigated by Professor Wyld and his pupil, though a few unfractured forms occur in C [§ 13 (5) supra], and according to Miss Serjeantson's investigations as given by Wyld (l. c. 3-4), Surrey has  $\bar{e}$  where the dialect of C prefers u or i, though at least one e-form occurs,  $qel\bar{e}file$  (xv).

The evidence, therefore, is on the whole against C being a Surrey text, and we must look for a district where the South-Western dialect merges in the South-Eastern, with perhaps a very slight tineture of Midland.

Unfortunately our knowledge of the dialect of many of the border districts is very slight indeed, being derived almost entirely from the place-names.

With great diffidence, I would suggest that our scribe may possibly have been a Berkshire man. We have seen that the ia, ya spellings need not have been confined to Kent, that the ie, ye spellings were probably genuine West Saxon spellings. Brandl tells us that the place-names of Berkshire varied between i and u forms for OE. y. Ekwall tells us that its situation leads us to expect ie as the i-mutation of ea (Contrib., P. 31, note). Its nearness to Surrey and the South-West explains the coincidence in regard to u, o = OE. eo. Finally its place-names show forms in  $\bar{e}$ , beside  $\bar{e}$ , if we may take "Stretfield" and "Stratfield" as a test.

APPENDIX III

THE PROVENANCE OF THE COTTON AND LAUD MSS. OF THE HEPTATEUCH

In his Ancient Libraries of Canterbury and Dover, Dr. M. R. James has shown conclusively that British Museum MS. Cotton Claudius B. IV originally belonged to the library of St. Augustine's, Canterbury. In the old catalogue there appears the entry:—1

95 + 34 Genesis anglic':  $2^{\circ}$  fo. and sylöus: D. 1. G. 1. (i. e. Distinctio. 1, Gradus 1.)

Dr. James at first took it for granted that this "Genesis in English" must have perished. "But," he says, "on comparing the entry in the catalogue with the great Anglo-Saxon Heptateuch (Cotton Claudius B. IV) in the British Museum, I found that they corresponded. The first leaf of the Heptateuch is gone, but the second begins with the words set down in our catalogue; and so a home has been found for one of the most famous of our early illustrated books; for Claudius B. IV is copiously enriched with pictures." There are no fewer than 418 of these pictures, but many of them are unfinished. Dr. James has also noted 3 that in addition to Josephus, Methodius, and some one called Normannus, the unabridged Latin text of the History of Assenath is quoted by the principal Latin annotator.

Dr. James's discovery is in harmony with the language of the late notes, which, as has already been noted (supra, p. 418) has a strong Kentish tinge; and is not inconsistent with the fact that the dialect of the original OE. text is pure West Saxon, for at Canterbury in the first half of the eleventh century (to which in Mr. Sisam's opinion Claudius B. IV belongs) very pure West Saxon is usual in "official" books.

With regard to MS. Laud Misc. 509, it has been pointed out by Dr. James <sup>4</sup> that this MS. once belonged to the Royal Library. From

James, l.c., p. lxxxiv.
 The Library, Dec. 1921, p. 195.

Wanley, p. 69, we learn that in L'isle's time it had passed into Sir Robert Cotton's hands. Laud may have got it from Cotton through L'isle; at all events it was given by Laud to the Bodleian Library in 1638.

Now in his account of MS. Cotton Vespasian D. xxi (Catalogue, p. 245) Wanley says: "Quoad scripturam, tractatus hic omnino convenit cum cod. Bibl. Bodl. qui inscribitur Laud E. 19 (now Laud Misc. 509) adeo ut uterque cod. videtur ab codem librario scriptus." A detailed comparison of a photographed page of Laud Misc. 509 with the Guölac portion of Vespasian D. xxi, has fully confirmed the accuracy of Wanley's judgment, and leaves no doubt that both were written by the same hand—a conclusion in which Mr. Gilson of the British Museum concurs.

Both books were once together in the Cotton Collection, and we know that Laud Misc. 509 was once in the Royal Library, many of whose books came from Canterbury, especially from Christ Church. But Dr. James, judging by the twelfth-century Latin hands of Vespasian D. xxi, assigns that MS. "probably" to Christ Church. If he is right, Laud Misc. 509, which is written by the same hand as a portion of Vespasian D. xxi, also belonged to Christ Church, Canterbury.<sup>1</sup>

Bankers:

THE NATIONAL PROVINCIAL AND UNION BANK OF ENGLAND, 2, PRINCES STREET, LONDON, E.C. 2.

The Subscription to the Society, which constitutes membership, is £2 2s. a year for the annual publications, from 1921 onwards, due in advance on the 1st of January, and should be paid by Cheque, Postal Order, or Money Order, crost 'National Provincial and Union Bank of England,' to the Secretary, Dr. Mabel Day, 15, Elgin Court, Elgin Avenue, London, W. 9. The Society's Texts can also be purchased separately through a bookseller at the prices put after them in the Lists.

Any Member could save time and trouble by sending the Secretary an order on the Member's Banker to pay his subscription each January, until countermanded. A printed form for this purpose would be sent on application to the Secretary.

THE EARLY ENGLISH TEXT SOCIETY was started by the late DR. FURNIVALL in 1864 for the purpose of bringing the mass of Old English Literature within the reach of the ordinary student, and of wiping away the reproach under which England had long rested, of having felt little interest in the monuments of her early language and life.

On the starting of the Society, so many Texts of importance were at once taken in hand by its Editors, that it became necessary in 1867 to open, besides the Original Series with which the Society began, an Extra Series which should be mainly devoted to fresh editions of all that is most valuable in printed MSS. and Caxton's and other black-letter books, though first editions of MSS. will not be excluded when the convenience of issuing them demands their inclusion in the Extra Series. From 1921 there will be but one series of publications, merging the Original and Extra Series.

During the fifty years of the Society's existence, it has produced, with whatever shortcomings, and at a cost of over £35,000, an amount of good solid work for which all students of our Language, and some of our Literature, must be grateful, and which has rendered possible the beginnings (at least) of proper Histories and Dictionaries of that Language and Literature, and has illustrated the thoughts, the life, the manners and customs of our forefathers and foremothers.

But the Society's experience has shown the very small number of those inheritors of the speech of Cynewulf, Chaucer, and Shakspere, who care two guineas a year for the records of that speech. The Society has never had money enough to produce the Texts that could easily have been got ready for it; and Editors are now anxious to send to press the work they have prepared. The necessity has therefore arisen for trying to increase the number of the Society's members, and to induce its well-wishers to help it by gifts of money, either in one sum or by instalments. The Committee trust that every Member will bring before his or her friends and acquaintances the Society's claims for liberal support. Until all Early English MSS, are printed, no proper History of our Language or Social Life is possible.
